

Secret Lab Note

Subject Twenty-Five is an incredible success when compared to the disaster that was twenty-four. I have managed to get it to eat, and it has adapted to the form of the meal as predicted. Still, it is a failure in the training sense. It seems it took on more than the appearance of its meal, and is unfortunately harmless. I shall attempt to train it, as it is the last of its brood and I have some time to wait before I can get a replacement, but I am not hopeful. Still, I will learn from my failures. Here's to subject twenty-six.