

Study Note

So many fools now have tried to penetrate my inner-sanctum and steal my secrets. At least now they will prove more useful to help keep my secrets hidden.

Lady Beatrice – Fond of puns and terrible one-liners, little else to set her apart.

Sir Oakmont – A druidic knight. A pity I could not recruit him, the mantrap has been grumpy ever since I had to put it on that diet.

Jak Sinister – Over-relied on most fighters being unused to his style. It being reversed from the typical swordplay would be a challenge if I fought with a sword. I am far above that however.

A necromancer's thrall - Ezekial dares to send his minions to pick up his belongings. If he wants his precious robes back he shall have to pick them up himself.

Cyril Akkord – A bard, though I've never seen an instrument like his before.

Gannar Bloodhammer – Thoroughly unimaginative in so many ways.

The Autumnbluff triplets – All used the same weapon type and fighting style. Seems very dull to me.

Liana Goldenhair - A cleric of a sun god. Focused more on healing than on blasting things with celestial fire. Which was a mistake.